Your Reach”*

Phoenix Group

When it comes to managing your Recovery Products; be it small components to large UPS's and Servers, your equipment is always given first class service by the Phoenix Group. We have processed thousands of tonnage of equipment from numerous major national companies because we are able to accommodate even the most remote sites in the US with tremendous success. We treat all products from a Telephony De-Installation, down to a simple recovery site using our direct pack and ship requirements with professional care and responsibility.

We know that recording inventory, securing and preparing all types of products for transportation requires a skill level that is only developed having a long history of completing these types of projects. With years of experience, we know that all sites and product removal is not accomplished in exactly the same way. Any extraction and preparation has its own set of requirements. These challenges require master skills and expertise that our Project Management teams at the Phoenix Group have mastered over the years.

If your project is a De-Installation of a Server Farm located in tight quarters with a deactivation process, and/or a simple locate, or just loose inventory, for retrieval and preparation for transport. Whatever the task, each course of action requires skilled technical know-how, and carefully planned logistics.

The Phoenix Group prides itself in using the right people in retrieving, prepping, packing, and loading your equipment with care.

Your acquired products demand the careful skills from people that understand how to complete standard to difficult tasks at lower costs while staging these components with professional and proper transport.

If you are strictly looking for the experts who will complete your projects with fast, efficient, reliable, and cost effective methods, then look no further. The Phoenix Group will guarantee that your projects will be handled by the best in the business from small to large scale. For all of your Recovery Asset Services from Start to Finish, from Facility to Warehouse, or from Site to Client, the Phoenix Group is your team.
